Trading to begin Friday, July 24, under new NASDAQ ticker symbol VIP;

New corporate identity reflects strategic transition to a power and infrastructure platform

PITTSFORD, NY / ACCESS Newswire / July 24, 2026 / Vulcan Infrastructure and Power Inc. (NASDAQ:VIP) ("Vulcan" or the "Company") is announcing the completion of its corporate name change from Greenidge Generation Holdings Inc. (formerly NASDAQ:GREE) to Vulcan Infrastructure and Power Inc.

The Company's common stock will begin trading under its new ticker symbol ("VIP") on Friday, July 24. Trading under the Company's previous ticker symbol "GREE" ceased at the close of market on Thursday, July 23. No action is required by shareholders in connection with the ticker symbol change. The change will be automatically reflected in shareholders' brokerage accounts, and the number of shares owned by each shareholder will remain unchanged.

The corporate name change and ticker change underscore the Company's strategic transformation, including its recently announced $39.4 million strategic investment positioning Vulcan as a publicly traded power and digital infrastructure platform focused on capitalizing on growing demand for energized sites supporting next-generation AI and HPC workloads, while continuing to serve electricity demands in its upstate New York market. The Company has transitioned away from its historical bitcoin mining data center operations.

The Company believes it is well-positioned to address this power and digital infrastructure opportunity. It currently controls 104 MW of existing energized capacity and has a 654 MW development pipeline across owned sites, with a path toward commercializing more than 100 MW of AI/HPC-ready capacity in the near term. A unique attribute of the Company is that, as a power generation source, it will also derive revenue and provide significant power for the communities where it operates to support the local grid.
